

Licensed Fire Protection Engineer

An integrated engineering firm with offices in Pennsylvania and Maryland, has an immediate opening for a Fire Protection Engineer in its York, PA office. The successful candidate will be a licensed fire protection engineer, have a minimum of four years experience dedicated to fire protection engineering, and have a BS degree in Fire Protection Engineering or a related technical BS degree from an accredited university.

Requirements

- Technical proficiency in fluid mechanics and mechanical engineering as it relates to fire protection.
- Ability to travel by air; possess current driver's license.
- Proficient keyboarding skills required.
- Excellent verbal and written communications skills.
- Overnight travel, to consult with customers, attend technical conferences and to conduct and monitor tests at test facilities, is typically less than 20 percent.

Compensation

Compensation commensurate with experience, to $80K

If qualified and willing to relocate to York, Pa, please send your resume via email to jbaker@mascpa.org